Linda-Zita Ifeoma Imo (Standing for Four Posts this Current LondonMet SU Election

My Manifesto

I wish to stand for the above posts because my “peoples / Students” skills and interest of the overall London Met Students. I have gained knowledge and experiences as well as the academic capacity that can be aligned to the above job and position specification for this year’s current election (2016).

As a current final year undergraduate student of the London Metropolitan University, within the faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities and studying towards a degree in Health and Social care (Expected degree 2016), I am interested in working within various healthcare settings in educating, health promotion and in the implementation of population health and well-being.

It is my desire and interest to work alongside fellow students and put my skills, knowledge and experience in offering quality care, support and services in an effective collaborative environment of the London Metropolitan University and beyond.

I am service focused and with a proven history of strategizing, proposing and a good communicational skilled individual who is always ready to see to the needs of others to achieve productivity.

I have experience and a track record in exceeding goals in a competitive environment, the ability to respond to client and customer issues promptly, with empathy and sensitivity as well as the ability to deliver outstanding services experience during interactions.

I am a well organised individual, very proactive, ability to multi-task, prioritize and willingness to perform various team functions when required. I am able to support larger teams by assisting in any overflow of outstanding work that needs attention, as well as other tasks commensurate with the post as required.

Responsible for ensuring student’s well-being and interests are maintained and up-to-date at all times, including the sorting of client matters, discussions on way forward and assisting in organizing student events and attending student union meetings.

I have the zeal to maintain effective leadership skills, the responsibility for the creation and maintenance of new student activity profile records, organising and scheduling meetings, appointments and arranging function as requested.

Most of all I am equally able to adhere to London Metropolitan University’s Code of Conduct and laid down policies, to observe and respect individual differences and confidentiality issues by promoting autonomy.

I am willing and available to offer my support and enable individuals to meet their study and educational goals by providing advice and direction to services within the university, with various opportunities including – Voluntary Work, Access to Community Resources, Leisure and Recreation Activities, Outreach, Further Education, Travel Training, Speak-up groups, Session Activities and Support circles.

As an elected Student Union Member of London Metropolitan University, I will serve with great enthusiasm to bring about positive change and student satisfaction to the best of my ability.

INTEREST AND HOBBIES:

Reading novels, listening to music, listening to news, watching movies, travelling, socializing, meeting and helping people, spending quality time with family and having some 'me' time (relaxing).
