

ARTY AGAFONOV

My name is Artem Agafonov. I am a student of faculty of Business and Law of London Metropolitan University. I am studying on the MSc course "International Banking, Finance and Compliance".

I am honoured and grateful to have an opportunity to stand for a Guildhall Faculty of Business and Law Sabbatical officer.

These, and many other things I am willing to bring to the table and work towards improving them if I become a Sabbatical officer of the Faculty of Business and Law of London Metropolitan University:

I am planning to conduct a critical survey with the students and find out what students of London Metropolitan Faculty of Business and Law think needs improvement, then structure the outcome in terms of importance and priority and look into implementation of the ideas which would strive to fulfil the wishes of the students. This would facilitate focus on the main task- the improvement of learning processes for students.

Being together with students, communicating with them on a daily basis, working towards achieving the required level of perfection in every aspect of studying processes.

When studying at the faculty of Business and Law in London Met, I see that students are scattered, and many of them do not want to engage in a student life of the University.

The sabbatical faculty officer is here to make the life of students during their studies at the University brighter and more interesting. The faculty officer must enlighten students on the useful events that help students to choose the direction of their career aspirations and life prospects.

Organise more helpful workshops and inform students about useful workshops outside the university. Offering students the opportunity to visit faculty officers at the office for advice on variety of subjects related to studies and career development.

Arranging more social events.

Improve the work processes of the University officers that help students build their CVs and Cover Letters.

Improve the University facilities.

It is highly expected the business faculty students to be proficient with Excel, VBA, and Microsoft Office.

Hence I would like to introduce afternoon and evening Excel, VBA, and Microsoft Office short courses slots at the University. As well as the arrangement of CFA and ACCA courses, for the students interested in careers in Investment Banking and Accountancy.

Nevertheless, organization of a proper hot food canteen in Moorgate Campus. Hot meals for students at reasonable prices.

Bring more awareness to the students about the Societies, which are associated with the Faculty of Business and Law, by giving out flyers and putting up posters around the campus.

Student years are the best, the brightest and one of the most vivid years in life. I want to work together with the students so that the period of their studies in University will be memorable for them. So the students would be proud of their achievements and having studied at London Metropolitan University.

Many thanks,

Artem Agafonov.
